OpenAI released a new model this week. You won't use it directly.

02

The danger isn't the model. It's everything built on top of it, inside tools you already use.

GPT-6.1 Terra is OpenAI's newest model, announced 26 Oct 2026, built to write and reason better than the last one.

Your ads manager, your page's chatbot, your email tool — some of them run on models like this one.

05

When the model behind a tool changes, the tool's suggestions change with it. Nobody tells you that happened.

06

Say a clinic's website chatbot starts answering differently overnight. The update came from OpenAI, not the clinic.

07

> Most small business owners never open the settings page where this gets decided. That's the actual gap.

08

Three places AI already sits inside your campaigns, whether you chose it or not:

1. Ad copy or headline suggestions inside Ads Manager
2. Any chatbot replying to enquiries on your page or site
3. Automatic budget or bid optimisation toggles

09

Each of those three got quietly upgraded at some point this year. You were never asked.

10

This is what that headline actually means for you: a new engine, running under tools you touch daily.

You don't need to understand the model.
You need to know which of your tools are built on one.
